Market Outlook

As the long holiday approaches and end of first quarter 2025, banks have raised deposit rates to boost liquidity in the banking system. Meanwhile, money market bond yields remain relatively flat, in line with the BI Rate, which held steady at 5.75% in March 2025. Government bond yields remain stable between 6.0% and 6.25%, providing a strong anchor for corporate bond yields, which remain above 6.5%. SRBI issuance has increased, with a slight decline in yields in the latest issuance. Nevertheless, overall SRBI yields have remained relatively stable at 6.3%-6.4% with lower issuance in whole month. Given the current market conditions, we believe money market funds present a safer investment option for investors.
